

Advancing Patient Centered Outcomes Research

Patient-centered outcomes research (PCOR) represents a fundamental shift in how research is prioritized and conducted.

Learn about opportunities and challenges in conducting patient centered outcomes research from Hopkins researchers, national, and international experts.

Friday, September 26, 2014

7:55 am – 1:00 pm • Breakfast/Registration 7:30, Lunch 1:00

Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center • Asthma and Allergy Center Auditorium
5501 Hopkins Bayview Circle • Baltimore, MD 21224

Space is Limited, Advanced Registration is Required

www.hopkinsrheumatology.org/APCOR

Supported in part by:

Center for Patient Centered Outcomes Research in Rheumatology, Rheumatic Diseases Research Core Center (NIH/NIAMS P30-AR48522), Patient Centered Outcomes Research Institute (PCORI) Pilot Project Program Award, and the Johns Hopkins Bayview Center for Innovative Medicine

JOHNS HOPKINS
M E D I C I N E